Seniors Jessie Coolidge and Sadie Gallant said the good writing scores reflect both the falents of the class and their preparation by SAD44.

"I think we've been a very creative class when it comes to writing," said Coolidge.

Gallant said those talents have been nurtured since grade school. "We've been encouraged to write all along," she said.

The students were in elementary school when the writing-intensive "Breadloaf" program was brought into the district. The middle school has also emphasized frequent writing and free reading.

Skiway wants cost of out-of-bounds search and rescue to come out of skier's pocket Local backcountry instructors and snowmobilers were key to last week's midnight rescue

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Make a bad judgment in the mountains, especially in cold weather, and you can quickly be facing death. But Jay Godson is lucky -- a bone-headed decision last Thursday will only leave him facing a bill from Sunday River Ski Resort for about $1,000.

Late last Wednesday afternoon, the 10 years old South Carolina man the 19-year-old South Carolina man decided to set off out of bounds from the resort, skiing over the back of Barker Mountain and into the woods of the Chapman Brook watershed.

After the thrill of the steep downhill and snowfields, Godson hoped to pick up a trail or logging road, to make his way back to civilization, according to Andy Robidoux, head of the Sunday River Ski Patrol.

But Godson didn't find any roads. instead found himself lost in thick vegetation, unfamiliar terrain and fading daylight. Then came darkness and exhaustion. Eventually hestopped and tried to find a way to stay alive through the night.

The rescue

Earlier that day, Godson had repeatedly suggested skiing off the back side of the mountain to his skiing companion. His companion declined. Godson then decided to attempt the descent alone, and headed into the woods off Bim's Whim.

Two hours later his friend reported him missing to the Sunday River Ski Patrol.

From that point a search team that grew to nearly 30 people began as-

Robidoux and Chip Seamans, Sunday River director of mountain services, coordinated ski patrollers, members of the Mahoosuc-Mountain Rescue Service, instructors from the nearby Hurricane Island Outward Bound School and a group of local snowmobilers.

The Maine Warden's Service also joined the search, and a helicopter equipped with infrared tracking gear was standing by in Bangor.

Danny Kennagh opened the office at the Col. Dyke Airfield, which served as a radio control post.

Burk, a 1993 graduate of Telstar High School, is a medic. He was recently home on two weeks' leave before heading back to Ft. Bragg, N.C., where he is currently stationed. Burk said he will go to Germany shortly in preparation for assignment to the peace-keeping force in Bosnia. He enlisted in the Army last June. "I'm a little nervous (about going to Bosnia) because I'm new," Burk said. "They told us we should be prepared to be there for a year." Last Tuesday the Mundt-Allen American Legion Post gave him a going-away party. Here, Burk is presented with a gift of a cribbage board and deck of cards by Post commander Frank Gibson, (center). #### RECALLING A VISIT TO 'THE HILL'

To the Editor:

Waking up to the sound of rain reminded me of a time 70 years ago. We were in the family camp in Mason town. This was the annual stay at the camp that Dad had built back in 1916. A one-room affair but adequate for a week or so for the family of nine when combined with a separate tent for the two elder boys.

Usually we would go for a pienic at a nearby pond, or, maybe climb Caribou Mountain, taking our lunch to eat at the summit. Sometimes the blueberries would be ripe or maybe the mountain cranberries would be plentiful. I remember on one occasion we picked enough to make a pie. It wasn't the easiest thing in the world to make a pie in camp, but Mother had seven of us children and could cope with just about anything that came along. The pie still lingers very vividly in my memory. It was the best "cherry pie" that I ever had tasted, not only did it taste tike cherry, but it had no cherry pits,

To get back to the memory of that time 70 years ago, a rainy day like this created a different aspect to the usual sunny day. Dad and Mother would discuss whether this would be a good time to make the calls on Pad's cousus down at the "Hill." This was the name that was used to denote the village of Bethel, in fact, it is still used by some of the old-timers who still live at the "Old Place" or in the nearby area. Bethel was the trading center for miles around back in those days, in fact, up until the automobile became commonplace in everyone's garage. The roads in the outskirts were still being "rolled" in the winter. This was to make them more usable to vehicles with runners, rather than wheels. One can still see the little garages out around where car owners would store their atties. It after mud season in the Spring, or occasionally, early Summer. Jane's father, who was a "Maine Man," used to tell her about sleighing in June and seeing flowers in bloom in the fields. This would have been after an unusual heavy fall of snow during the winter.

To get back to the rainy day trip to the Hill, some of us younger children would go with Mother and Dad to Bethel. We would stop and visit a spell with Cousin Edith and Amy. After catching up on the news of the families, the weather, and any changes in the area -- of which there would be very few. "We like it the way it is." Mother would have an erfand or two at Bryant's Market, and Dad would talk deer hunting with the Bryanis. We would meet some of the women from nearby farms, who had come to town with their husbands to trade eggs and butter for the few staples that couldn't be raised on the farm. Dad would find out, from them, that their husbands were at the blacksmiths or maybe at the harness makers. Dad would leave Mother and a child or two to talk with the women folks. Then the rest of us would go with him in search of the men talks to get caught up on the chances of having a good fall on the summer, a rainy day like this would bring the farmers to town to get a mattess mended, or get the piece of farm machiners replaced. The blacksmath shop, of which there were several in town, was the isaid place for farmers to congregate on a many day

Usually we whilst head back to eamp in time for Mother to get the each ready. On the way, we were apt to stop at a farm that sold sander, prostace to get sweet corn, summer squash, cukes, and some turned not the viportatoes. Occasionally we would be able to get a quarter a Land from Errest and Beny Morrill. They had a flock of about 100 stoop. Bery find named them all, so could identify each one.

After lanch some of us boys would go up the road to Eli and Ella through a to play in the barn. There were several Grover poys whose ages were very close to some of us. They had tunnels through the hav abica may introduced as to. Also, they had dug a cave in the sand bank seizud their house, which we found very intriguing.

Strange tien a little thing like a summer rain will bring back arounded of the past. I number to restor's common when I ence sairs in a letter to her about something in the pass that she denied rear rusting done. The cuburbled tro that it was a sign of old age where f wrote on the past. This was years and, and I wasn't old then - but I can be one, that bear approaching oldings now, is that a mistake in the monotoning something of the past. I think not. So lew reach the years to bedied old. Law looking to rward to it. How about you.

Coach Walsh had been hand-slapped once before for recruiting violations which the university treated as a mere sports peccadillo. But as AD Tyler lear-jerked, this extant 40 indictment was maybe more serious. Walsh, she admitted, had taken private money on the side after his 1993 suspension. And hockey gladiators had accepted no-no NCAA freebies.

So what was the hypercritical caveat to UM's gladiator program? Well, sniffled AD Tyler, we love you, guy, but we have to suspend Shawn Walsh for a year without pay. If a McDonald's counterman was caught giving a free Big Mac to his buddy he would have been canned on the spot. But this is the gladiator world and AD Tyler didn't catch the real world comparison.

The UM gladiator arena has been cleaned up, so say the self-righteous field-court-rink operators. The UM sports fans who condone everything short of cutting off the ears and tails of defeated teams are happy. The sycophantic Bangor Daily News sport writers and adulating TV sport jocks are still kissy-face and sickly condescending with the university sports spinners.

But what the university outfit doesn't seem to get is that the credibility of whole State of Maine took a big hit, a very big hit that bleeds into far more than just the gladiator game. And for that the self-righteous university system has yet to fully apologize to the citizens of Maine.

The primary responsibility of a university system is to academically prepare our kids for the complex world which they will one day sway -- and not to chase hockey pucks.

Police seek Andover man, teenagers

Wednesday, January 3, 1996

ANDOVER--Police issued a misdemeanor arrest warrant Saturday for an Andover man in connection with the disapparance of two teenage girls. The warrant charges Lewis Newcomb, 41, with criminal restraint, according to Rumford police Lt. Wayne Gallant, Phalan Haney, 14, and an unidentified 16-year-old, both Andover residents, have been missing since last Tuesday. Gallant said Newcomb knowingly got the girls to go with him without having the permission of the parents. The girls are friends of Newcomb's daughter. Anyone with information on the case is asked to call Capt. Jim Miclon of the Oxford County Sheriff's Department at 1-800-733-1421.

Town manager interviews scheduled

GREENWOOD--Selectmen will interview town manager candidates on Jan. 16, and they expect to have a potential manager at the annual Town Meeting in March. "The person will be at the meeting -- but he won't know if he has a job," said chairman Marie Bartlett. The town approved the position last year, but it will come up for a reconsideration vole at the Town Meeting. Bottlett will the insure will be first an the rest to the Town Meeting. Bartlett said the issue will be first on the agenda. She said if the manager position is turned down, other town officials will be elected as usual. But if it is approved, "everyone else will then be appointed (by the manager), and all those articles will be scratched," she said. In speaking with officials from other towns, Bartlett said "no one has ever heard of this situation. We'll either go left or right, but I wouldn't hazard a guess as to what it will be," she said.

Packed powder packed with skiers

LOCKE MILLS/NEWRY--Local ski areas reported record-setting numbers of skiers during the past holiday week. At Mt. Abram, general manager Dave Conary said skier visits "shattered" all previous records for Christmas week and the New Year's weekend. He attributed the good business to ample amounts of natural snow, as well as the area's upgraded snowmaking and additional trails. At Sunday River, skier business was up 17 percent over last year, according to director of communications Ken Beaulieu. He said Saturday was the busiest day so far this

Landowner suing Newry, ski resort

NEWRY-Landowner William Hamill is suing the town of Newry and Sunday River Ski Resort, according to selectmen chairman Steve Wight. Wight said Hamill claims the town did not follow Maine statutes in deeding land in Sunday River Village to the ski resort. The land parcels in question connect two cul-de-sacs to Hamill's property. Wight said the town had given a quit claim deed to Sunday River for the land. "It deeded any town rights to the land -- under the assumption the town didn't have any rights in the first place -- to Sunday River," said Wight. He said Hamill wants free access from the ends of Greenbrier and Timberline roads to his property, allowing for possible development on his land. Several years ago Sunday River tried unsuccessfully to secure access to its Jordan Bowl area across Hamill's land.

Bethel first in deer/car accidents

BETHEL.--More deer were killed in collisions with motor vehicles in Bethel than in other area towns, according to 1994 statistics. Numbers from the Inland Fisheries and Wildlife Department showed 17 deer killed in Bethel, compared to 15 in Rumford, 13 in Mexico, 12 in Dixfield, and four in Andover, Biologist Gerald Lavigne said motorists should be especially alert for deer in late May and June, when the deer go looking for new food sources, and from late September to November -- rutting seacon In the fall, said Lavigne, "It's not that hunters are pushing deer, it's just that deer are not as alert as they should be -- their minds are on

Deer kill exceeds predictions

AUGUSTA--He pute he s-than desirable bunting conditions at the beginung of the November deer searon. Mame's 1905 deer kill appears to be well ahead of the predicted harvest. A preliminary fally of nearly 400 deer registration stations, throughout the state conducted by the Maine Warden Serve undicates the 1995 deer kill statewide will be slightly above 27,525. The figure is about 3,000 more than the predicted 24,600. Gerry Lavigue, a biologist for the Department of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife, said the numbers are good news because they indicate the deer population has rebeauched strongly.

Adopt a Hatchery

AUGUSTA-Several Monte paper companies are taking part in an "Adopt a Hatchery" program to help appende aging state lish hatcheries. The effort follows the repulsion by voters last full of a S10-million band issue that would have funded napor removation and repairs of the hatcheries. James River Corporation in Old Town first stepped forward and offered to help with the Entireld hatchery, Georgia Pacific, Internafrom Paper, and Champion Informational have followed the example. At the New Glomester Hatchery, It's has provide labor and materials for con-struction of a LSDF gallen standers stock lank.

Scavenger plants to clean soil?

GREENBELT, Md.-The day may come when plants will be used to clean contaminated soils, according to Rufus Changy, a U.S. Department of Agriculture agreementst. That could be at mining sites, landfills. nuclear waste damps, or any site contaminated with heavy metals or radioactive isotopes. Chance said the plants could take up the materials through their roots and transport them to stems or leaves. Metalscavenging plants could be grown and harvested like hay. "Burning the hay allows recovery and recycling of the metals. The ash is similar to commercial ore," said Chancy. Rayword might be one candidate plant.

Asian apples good-tasting, hardy

GREENBELT, Md.--Apple pies in the future may have a hp-smacking taste that can be traced to apples picked on explorations to the mountains of Central Asia. Philip Forsline of the USDA's Agricultural Research Service led a team on a trip last summer to Kazakhstan. He said the team found high-quality apples free of insect damage and without signs of apple scab -- a serious disease of U.S. apples. "We also collected apples in areas where winter temperatures drop to -40 degrees F, and where there is very little rainfall -- indicating that some of the varieties are suitable for extreme northern climates and can even survive near-drought conditions," Forsline said. The apples will be studied for their breeding poten-

Chairlift company defends equipment

RENO, Nev .-- The Nevada company that built a ski lift involved in a fatal accident at a Canadian resort is saying little about the investigation other than that it does not seem now that its equipment was at fault.

"Preliminary information provided to Lift Engineering appears to indicate that there was no equipment failure," the company said in a statement. A recent accident at Whistler Mountain in British Columbia killed one skier and injured nine others. Doug Forseth, president of Whistler Mountain Ski Corp., said witness reports indicate one of the chairs on the 1 1/4-mile-long, high-speed Quicksilver Express broke loose in the accident. It slid down the cable and crashed into the next chair before falling about 30 feet into brush and rocks. Three more chairs slid into each other and down the cable before reaching a tower, where they also fell. It was the most recent of five incidents over the past decade involving lifts made by the company, the Reno Gazette-Journal reported on Wednesday.

From the Bethel Police log:

Busy, boozy New Year's

On Sunday, Dec. 31 at 7:44 p.m. a subject was stopped for unsafe speeding on Railroad Street. The driver tried to elude police by pulling into a driveway. A check showed the subject's license was under suspension. The driver, Robin A. Pittman of Hunter, Ga., was summonsed for operating after suspension.

At 1 p.m. on Dec. 31 Sunday River Ski Resort requested traffic control at the Route 2/Sunday River Road intersection. Police advised they were unable to assign an officer, but would attempt to be present -with no guarantee. The officer did direct traffic from 3:30 to 5 p.m.

At 8:32 p.m. police were requested to call regarding a female at the Sudbury Inn "Suds" who was concerned that when she returned home she would be assaulted by her husband because she was intoxicated. She was apparently taken to an unknown residence to sober up before returning home. The caller was advised to call back when the person who took the woman to the residence returned. The woman's name was unknown. The caller did not call back.

At 9:26 p.m. a subject was stopped on Route 26 for erratic operation. He was given several sobriety tests and failed them. The subject admitted to having at least five beers. The subject, Roland W. Walker of Bethel, was given a balloon test and summonsed for OUI. A wrecker was called to tow the vehicle.

Monday, Jan. 1

At 12:04 a.m. a Bethel resident reported a subject was being disorderly and she wanted him removed. The complainant told police and a state trooper that the subject, a juvenile, was having a bad drug reaction. The male subject immediately became assaultive and combative. He was placed in protective custody. While in custody he continued to fight back. He hit the trooper's mace, which went off and affected all three people. Bethel Rescue was called to transport the subject to the hospital because of the drug reaction. He was transported and held at Stephens Memorial Hospital overnight. His parents/guardian were called and advised. There were no charges at this time.

At 3:37 a.m. a Main Street resident reported subjects were fighting and making very loud noise. Police spoke to several subjects in front of Preb's. One appeared to be bleeding from the mouth, and had cut hands. He and another subject began pushing each other. The officer separated them, placed the first subject in handcuffs, and put him in the police cruiser. The second subject said he did not wish to press charges. The subject in the cruiser was given a ride home.

Also last week Wednesday, Dec. 27

At 1:45 p.m. a New Hampshire logging truck driver suffered a seizure while turning from Route 26 on to the Parkway road. The truck was left blocking the road. Police were called for traffic control. The truck was moved, and the driver transported to Stephens Memorial Hospital.

Thursday, Dec. 28

At 11:59 p.m. a subject was stopped on Route 2. A check revealed his license was currently suspended. A small amount of marijuana was also found in the vehicle. The subject, George Goforth of Madison, was charged with operating after suspension and possession of a usable amount of marijuana.

Friday, Dec. 29

At 9:40 a.m. a Sunday River Ski Resort employee requested traffic control at the Route 2/Sunday River Road intersection. The town manager was contacted, and she said a reserve officer could be contacted to conduct the detail. But an officer was not available, and Sunday River was advised at 10:30 a.m.

At 2:27 p.m. A West Bethel resident reported he and his ex-girlfriend were involved in a bitter custody battle over their daughter. He said that on two separate occasions during child visitation she had entered his tesidence without permission. The first time he asked her not to just walk in. She apparently ignored the request and walked in again on this day. The complainant did not want to press charges but asked that she he advised that type of conduct was unwanted. Police went to her business and spoke with her. When told of the complaint she became very angry and profane toward her ex-boyfriend, and indirectly to the oftheer. She was told not to enter his residence without permission again.

Saturday, Dec. 30

At 8:15 p.m. a West Bethel resident requested that police accompany her and her husband to their residence to remove clothing because they wouldn't be staying there. The complainant said her brother had threatened them. The couple was unsure if they wanted to pursue the

At 9:40 p.m. the same West Bethel resident reported her brother had threatened ber and her husband. She said they work together on construction. She said her husband had been having "little accidents" at work, such as being but by building materials. She said her brother told her by phone he was coming over to choke her husband. The woman said she wanted her residence checked, and she said she might also request a peace officer detail when she wanted to pick up personal items from the residence. Police advised her to tell her brother he was not welcome on their property. She said she would do so.

municipalities, and other organizations went into effect Jan. 1. A one-year-old law has required the testing of drivers in organizations with more than 50 employees. The new law will require organizations of any size to submit drivers' names (or numbers) to a pool for possible testing. Lab technician Bonnie Largess said the health center has received many calls asking about the law and the test, prompting the health center to offer the service to the community. FROM THE The Board of Directors and the staff of the Bethel Area Chamber would like to thank all our members, sponsors and friends for their support during The chamber has had a great year. Our membership has grown to 172 businesses. We have moved our office into the beautiful information center in the Bethel Train Station. We held our first annual Job Opportunity Fair in cooperation with several local and state agencies. We answered thousands of inquiries about the Bethel Area and distributed 25,000 copies of our annual brochure and 36,000 copies of our shopping and services and dining guides. We attended three ski shows: in Halifax, Nova Scotia; Providence, R.I.; and Boston. We have placed attractive cooperative ads in Maine Guide to Winter, Maine Invites You and Exploring Maine magazines for the region. Our volunteers have beautified Main Street and the common with autumn and holiday decorations. We have organized several successful events including the Sixth Annual Bethel Art Fair, the Second Annual Great Duck Race on the Sunday River, the Key Bank/Mollyockett Day Classic, the Fourth Annual Bethel Savings/Maine State Triathlon Classic, the Third Annual Chamber Ski Challenge, the Sixth Annual McDonald's/Jordan's Bethel Area Chamber Golf Classic and the 26th Annual Chamber Awards Banquet.

NOT EVEN CLOSE--19-year-old Jay Godson thought he'd just drop over the back of Barker Mountain, ski through the woods and snowfields, then pick up a trail or road leading back to Bethel. He set out Thursday at 3:15 p.m., but when darkness fell the South Carolina skier was still far short of his target. The white line in the photo shows the start of the route followed by Godson and, later, by his rescuers. The line disappears behind the ridge where, just before midnight, Godson was found -- tired, wet, cold and huddled in a

Robidoux said the knowledge of local snowmobilers Chip Smith, John Swan and Mike Wight was a major asset to the search team. At one point a group of searchers, including Robidoux, was only 30 yards from where Godson was eventually found. The searchers thought they heard a yell, but further efforts there failed to make

At 10:30 p.m. the decision was made to sent a rescue team over the top of Barker. The team would work its way down a set of tracks discovered by Keith Koch, who was acting as a radio relay at the top of the mountain.

The team was made up of Maggie Annett, Dan Ellevit, Barbara biore. Bill Fredericks, and Summ McBride. All are experienced mountaineers and members of Mahoesuc Mountain Reseue and Outward Bound.

"The test tells more about what the students can do," said Coolidge, Richardson agreed, "Just filling in answers is repetitious. The openended questions challenge you more," he said.

Tests "waste of time"

But another group of seniors said the MEAs are an unnecessary interruption of their education.

They're not a good judge of what we know. They're overrated -- colleges don't look at them, so the students don't care," said Justin Hutchins, who plans to go to col-

Andy Dennis, who will study theatre in college, said that although his reading scores were good, he also places little value on the test.

The students go in and do what they can on them, but they're a waste of time. The state shouldn't do them," he said.

Chris Bowie had one positive observation, "One of the questions asked us to compare the song "Blowing in the Wind" to a World War II song, I liked that," he said. Cailin Kavanaugh said preparing students for the test also wastes the time and effort of the faculty. "I feel bad for the teachers and administrators. It's unnecessary stress," he

Teachers' view

The test gets equally mixed reviews from teachers. English teacher Bev Melville finds it generally useful. "It gives us a view of how we're doing in comparison to the state,"

She also said the tests go into students' records, and are available to colleges, although they probably don't carry the weight of the SAT

But Melville doesn't see the MEAs as an absolute necessity. She said if the state wants to make further education cuts, she'd rather give up the test than the school's operational subsidy.

Long-time math teacher John Applin views the MEAs as state-

"I make relatively little use of it. If I see a major discrepancy, I try to address it," he said.

Applin said he plans his curriculum according to standards set by a national math teachers' organization because he thinks they are more comprehensive,

As for some students' criticism that they get left behind in class, Applin acknowledged that "the kids in the middle have had to work harder." But he said another class geared toward middle-level students had been added this year.

Test not "be-all, end-all" School board chairman Merton Brown of Bethel said he thinks some district residents place too much importance on the test. "I think some taxpayers think it's the be-all and end-all on how the system is doing," he said. "I think it's more valuable to individual students than it is to the overall sys-

Don't Yank the Crank has moved to secure public input into the decision by Oxford County Telephone and Telegraph, new owners of the exchange, to convert the town's telephones to Mee Johnson, chairman of Don't Yank the Crank, said, "I am pleased that Bryant Pond residents will finally have an opportunity to voice their opinions to the PUC. The people's wishes have been the last thing O. C. T. & T has conodered.

The people of Bryant Pond will to make the new telephone company pay attention to the needs and do ires of our townspeople. I erge every Bryant Pond resident to attend," she said.

Colista Morgan Winter has its compensations. When heavy snow comes country living takes a new dimension. It's no bad thing, for a short time, to be snowbound. When time stands still, there is time for those things one never has time for otherwise: reading, cracking nots, doing scrapbooks or writing. These busy days there are always "Things That Have To Be Done", appointments to be kept, deadlines that must be met ...

IV TV. has changed from Tuesday things that count in giving and sharing of love that grows like a steady lantern's light, in the easy communion of books and talk with one another. We learn from snowbound days. This we learn in country living.

My Christmas weekend was delightful. On Saturday afternoon my doorbell rang. A niece and her husband were at the door.

In a short time my niece said, "I think you have more company coming for a car has turned into your driveway." I looked and saw three cars coming. They were all nieces and nephews with their spouses and children. They had all come to wish Aunt "Clis" or Great Aunt a Merry Christmas and to bring me gifts. There were 20 or more of them, happy and having fun.

Last week on Tuesday we had some carolers from the 4-H come by After greetings and talk they decided to make a snowman, I didn't do much of the "making" but I did supply casters for the eyes, a red bulb for a nose and a hat for his head. He looked just grand standing there tall and stately. We gave him campfire so toasted marshmallows the name Curtis, a strange relative. It was all fun and made my Christmas, even though it was a bit early. Thank you all for the thought! They left here to go to Grammie's or Mother's for a real party. Curtis stood well until Christmas alternoon, then I noticed that his red nose was gone and one eye had vanished. By evening he had regained his eye and nose but he was tipping a bit toward the South. I think he had a good holiday but I wondered why he was tippy?

I joined the Holts at the farm for Christmas Day. There were 11 of us. We had a lovely lunch then our gifts from a beautiful and loaded tree. Everyone was well remembered. I am sure I shall remember it always. Mr. and Mrs. Kyle Tilsley went to Florida to spend some time with her parents. Dorothy Betts went to her daughter's home for the holiday in New Hampshire.

Rena Curtis was at Mr. and Mrs. Carl Curtis' for Christmas Day.

Arline Bernier Grandson Ben had five school and scout friends for an overnight. These six boys made some rapid round trips up a set of stairs, along halls and down a second set of stairs through the downstairs rooms accompanied by combined sounds which put to my mind a fellerbuncher, after myriad rounds they settled down to a lunch, then a short session of TV before retiring in their sleeping bags in a tent set up in the living room. The young host had given way to the sandman and was carried in to his corner, but some of the others told scary stories before settling down. The overnight was fine as no bears or roving Indian on the warpath came about, but the host West Paris Russell Yates Howdy, friends. Christmas is over and the problem begins -- to find the place to put what we received, or how to really use it. We drew names this year, so there isn't so many items to make use of, but they are better gifts.

After doing our shopping on Monday, I tackled making yeast rolls to take to our Grange supper. Peggy tackled removing some of the snow with Chuck Haities and children from the roofs of her outer buildings, as it was getting piled up quite ings, as it was getting piled up duite trom other Granges and they all enjoyed a nice supper and the Christmas meeting that followed. The meeting was held in the old juvenile Grange Hall, where we were real cozy and warm. Some officers were absent, as they had been sick, but others filled in as officers. We all had a good time.

Early Tuesday morning, Emerson Merrill showed up to take Peggy to Lewiston to see Dr. Rynne for a more extensive eye examination. I had typed up my news and was just preparing to try blowing a path to Peggy's little house, when they returned. A path to her little house hadn't been blown out before and both the snow blower and I found it to be quite a task, but we did finally succeed in getting it accomplished. After having dinner, we tackled removing the snow from her little house. She had said that it would probably take about 30 minutes, and we had spent almost one and onehalf hours when the job was finally us more snow and wind. We'd been eating, little Kayla kept watch to see happy it they'd given it all to the skiways and slighted us entirely.

The Grange meeting, which was supposed to be at West Paris Grange on Thursday evening, was canceled because of the weather.

Friday afternoon, John Higgins from South Woodstock came and cleaned off some roots for us. He like I couldn't keep up with the Peggy had errands down street Saturday and she also delivered a Christmas present of homemade bread, cookies and candy to Mary Smith. We got gifts in return. I had stayed home and spent several hours shoveling snow.

The weather was quite nice Saturday evening, with only a few flurries, so Peggy got to attend the dance at Locke Mills Town Hall. They and a large attendance and all seemed to have a good time.

It was reasonably quiet here with us Christmas Day. Doc Merrill from South Paris came to have dinner with us. He visited for a short while in the afternoon and then returned home to rest, as he planned to have supper with his son and daughter-in-law.

Our sister Laura made a short stop in the afternoon, as she was down this way delivering some Christmas goodies from Franklin Grange.

I shoveled more snow in the afternoon and now have all of our roofs cleared ready for the next

Yesterday morning found us traveling to West Bethel to spend Christmas Day with the Emerson Merrill family. We arrived there, bearing goodies to help with the dinner and gifts to put under the Christ-mas tree. Jim and Mary Merrill, with their two little girls Kayla and Lyndsay, joined us for the nice ham dinner that Loretta had prepared.

when I had finished so that we could have gifts from the Christmas tree.

We had drawn names this year, so there weren't as many gifts to buy, and we could buy a better gift for the one whose name we got. That made it much better. I received two gifts that I will certainly appreciate. One was a gift certificate to Chef's was here about three hours and Table. Now to find a nice looking moved a lot of snow. It just seemed young lady to dine with me; I'm sure it won't be easy, but I'll manage. The other gift that I'll make real good use of is one of those new snow scoops with the plastic body and metal tubing frame and handles. This was from Peggy. I have one of those old-style scoops made of wood, so it is heavy and has two narrow runners to slide on, which cut in and made it hard to push.

Samantha Murch had been sick. but she and husband Tom, also little daughter Joanna, came for a while in the afternoon.

Peggy and I stayed until late afternoon so that we could see the Sunday, I made yeast rolls to take deer come out to enjoy their Christmas goodies. Several deer came out. but the eight-point buck didn't give Peggy a chance to take a picture of

M.V. Slalom Open

Dec. 30--Josh Adams had a fantastic second run to come from fifth place to first as the Telstar boys' team won the Mountain Valley Slalom Open. Other finishers: Kurt Thurston in fourth, Adam Newell in eighth, and Chris Vaughan in ninth, "Any time you can put four skiers in the top 10 in a six-way meet you've got to win, and we did just that," said coach Tom Remington. "Not only did we do that, but we put six finishers in the top 13." Other teams competing: Mountain Valley, Fryeburg, Edward Little, Freeport, and Sacopee Valley.

The girls didn't fare as well, finishing fifth, "It was a very long and difficult two runs and fatigue set in," said Remington, "But I was still very happy with their efforts. They are four of the best girls a coach could have, and they gave it a good shot."

Dec. 28--Beth Howe scored 10 points and Sarah Richardson nine in a loss to WMHS of N.H. in the Christmas Tournament. Jana Mason had eight points and 10 rebounds. Dec. 29--(Christmas Tournament) Beth Howe had 22 points, three rebounds, and three steals; Jana Mason six points, 11 rebounds and four steals; M.J. The Rebels were down by 22 at one point in the second quarter, came back to within 14 at the half, were down by four at the end of the third quarter, and went ahead in the first part of the fourth quarter to win the game. "The girls successfully maintained their press for three-quarters of the game, moved the ball well under pressure, scored on the transition, and scored on their set offense," said coach Ray Seames. "It was a very satisfying win against a team that is 5-2 on the season and has made the playoffs for the last seven or eight years. Sarah Richardson was named to the All-Tourney team, and Beth Howe and Jana Mason both had an outstanding tournament."
